

THE FIGHTER COLLECTION

PRESS RELEASE

4th May 2010

The Fighter Collection at ITEC 2010

STAND B114

The Fighter Collection's "The Battle Simulator" creates a synthetic environment of elements of modern air, land and sea warfare. This solution is a development of The Fighter Collection Simulation Engine (TFCSE) which is currently integrated into "serious game" air combat simulations and military applications such as the A-10C Desk Top Simulator (DTS) for the U.S. Air National Guard and AC-130U IR sensor operator training.

"The Battle Simulator" provides modules that operate on stand-alone or networked PC's and offers military clients unprecedented levels of realism, portability, functionality, and cost effectiveness previously not available on commercial hardware. Training modules offered include:

- Systems Training (e.g. cockpit procedures training in a synthetic environment)
- Procedures and tactics
- Mission planning and rehearsal (e.g. forward air control and forward observer – FACSE and Joint Fires modules)
- "Proof of Concept" integrated UAV trainer for pilot and sensor workstations.

At ITEC 2010, The Fighter Collection will be demonstrating the Desk Top Simulator of the A-10C, the Desk Top Simulator of the Ka-50 helicopter, the JTAC workstation and the artillery commander workstation, all linked over a LAN demonstrating typical Joint Fires exercises.

The A-10C simulator will be demonstrated with CH Product's new A-10C High Fidelity Hands On Throttle and Stick (HOTAS) system for Military Desktop Simulation applications. CH Products will also be demonstrating REAPER UAV controls for training.

In addition, on the stand, SDS International will be showing their MQ-9 Reaper Mission Training Device (MTD) Simulator currently in use by the U.S. Air National Guard (www2.sdslink.com).
